

Adviser Humana Foundation

Born in Madrid in January 2014 it aims to provide social assistance to children and their families who are in social disadvantage in Spain and in developing countries from Africa and South America.

EDUCAMERUN

The project was launched in the school year 2013-14 by Father Cyprien Melibi with the help of some Spanish benefactors. The aim was to shape and channel the support he had been giving to underprivileged families in an informal way before that time.

About Cameroon

Cameroon is a country in Central Africa with many natural resources but also with social difficulties that affect human development.

More than half of the population lives in rural areas where the literacy rate is very low, living conditions are precarious and access to education is not easy. The country's Educational system fails to adjust to fast growth in population and private schools do play a relevant role in the system. The most vulnerable childhood and the poorer families have it very difficult in such a context.

Improvement in education is a leverage which opens an opportunity for a better future to the children in Cameroon.

EDUCAMERUN Project in Brief

Our Aim

To make it possible for underprivileged children in Cameroon to receive an adequate education and to support them and their families in their educational process.

To Whom

Children, both boys and girls, from underprivileged environments in Cameroon and who have been abandoned, are orphans, born from an under aged mother or in a large family with no resources. Minors with some sort of disability can also be beneficiaries of the project.

How

Granting scholarships in private schools as well as educational support to the child and his family. During Summer time the children are trained in languages and computer skills.

Our Philosophy

Equality – all children are treated the same with no differentiation whatsoever.

Community – the project aspires to beneficiate all the community in which these children live.

Sustainability – the ultimate goal is the community's future sustainability.
